Initial Development of English Language Teachers
in Mexico

Marlene Gerarda del Carmen Brenes Carvajal

BA (UCR), MA (UDLA-P)

A thesis submitted to fulfil requirements for the degree of Doctorate in Applied Linguistics

Faculty of Human Sciences
Department of Linguistics
Macquarie University
2009
Abstract

This research focuses on the analysis of the beliefs of pre-service Mexican student-teachers from a public university in central Mexico who have learned English as adolescents or young adults. Specifically, it examines their beliefs about teaching and about themselves as English teachers in different stages of initial professional development. The participants reflected on their experiences as English language learners, students, teaching practicum students and as first year teachers in a follow up study.

This thesis is composed of three studies that are linked by involving the same participants. The studies follow these participants through different stages in their initial development as teachers. The research is set within the qualitative research paradigm and draws on qualitative data and interpretive analysis. The data were retrieved using the following procedures: autobiographies, a focus group interview, journals, personal interviews and short narratives.

Responses to the following research questions emerged through the different stages of this thesis.

1. What initial beliefs do pre-service and beginning students hold about being a teacher?
2. Do these beliefs evolve or change during the initial stages of their teacher development?
3. Do their experiences during their initial stages of their development influence their beliefs?

There is little research on English language teacher beliefs in Mexico. It is considered that research in this area can contribute to the understanding of the processes of what English language teachers’ beliefs are and how they evolve or develop over time and the influences that they may have on the actual teaching process. This research may contribute to bring to the attention of English language teacher preparation programs the necessity of providing opportunities for student-teachers to unpack their beliefs and reflect and view them in the light of the courses and their practice in order to create an understanding of the Mexican educational context of which they will be a part.
Statement of Candidate

I hereby certify that the work in this thesis entitled “Initial development of English Language teachers in Mexico” has not previously been submitted for a degree nor has it been submitted as part of requirements for a degree to any other university or institution other than Macquarie University.

I also certify that the thesis is an original piece of research and it has been written by me. Any help and assistance that I have received in my research work and the preparation of the thesis itself have been properly acknowledged.

In addition, I certify that all the information sources and literature used are indicated in the thesis.

The research presented in this thesis was endorsed by Macquarie University Ethics Committee, HE27APR2007.DO5135.

Marlene Gerardina del Carmen Brenes Carvajal
Student ID: 40580369
March 30, 2009
Table of Contents

Abstract....................................................................................................................................... i
Statement of Candidate.............................................................................................................. ii
Table of Contents....................................................................................................................... iii
List of Tables................................................................................................................................ vi
Appendices................................................................................................................................... vii
Acknowledgements................................................................................................................... viii

1. Introduction................................................................................................................................. 1
1.1 Importance of the research....................................................................................................... 2
1.2 Research focus......................................................................................................................... 3
1.3 Research questions............................................................................................................... 5
1.4 Overview of research methods............................................................................................... 6
1.5 Thesis description and organization.................................................................................... 7
1.6 Summary............................................................................................................................... 8

2. Contextual background............................................................................................................... 9
2.1 Introduction............................................................................................................................ 9
2.2 Language teaching in Mexico: macro context..................................................................... 9
2.2.1 The institution, its nature and history: micro context..................................................... 12
2.3 Licenciatura en Lenguas Modernas....................................................................................... 14
2.3.1 History and nature of the program.................................................................................... 14
2.3.2 Structure of the LEMO program..................................................................................... 16
2.3.3 Course syllabus, assessment and evaluation practices................................................... 18
2.3.4 Teaching Practicum........................................................................................................... 19
2.4 The student body and teachers............................................................................................ 20
2.5 The alumni at the LEMO program....................................................................................... 21
2.6 Summary............................................................................................................................... 22

3. Literature Review...................................................................................................................... 23
3.1 Introduction............................................................................................................................ 23
3.2 Pre-service teachers............................................................................................................. 23
3.3 The practicum....................................................................................................................... 25
3.4 The first year teaching experience...................................................................................... 28
3.5 Teacher beliefs...................................................................................................................... 30
3.6 Summary............................................................................................................................... 34

4. Methodology............................................................................................................................. 35
4.1 Introduction............................................................................................................................ 35
4.1.1 Aims................................................................................................................................. 36
4.2 Justification of methodology............................................................................................... 36
4.2.1 Limitations of methodology............................................................................................ 38
4.3 Narrative inquiry.................................................................................................................. 40
4.4 Participants........................................................................................................................... 41
4.5 Procedures for data collection............................................................................................. 42
4.6 Analysis procedures.............................................................................................................. 43
4.7 Ethical considerations.......................................................................................................... 44
4.8 Summary............................................................................................................................... 44

5. Pre-service teachers’ beliefs about being a teacher............................................................... 46
5.1 Introduction............................................................................................................................ 46
5.1.1 Purpose of the study........................................................................................................ 47
5.1.2 Research question............................................................................................................ 47
5.2 Research methodology.......................................................................................................... 48
5.2.1 Participants..................................................................................................................... 52
7.1 Introduction.............................................................................................. 119
  7.1.1 Purpose of the study: follow up study...................................................... 119
  7.1.2 Research questions................................................................................... 120
7.2 Research methodology.................................................................................. 121
  7.2.1 Participants............................................................................................... 122
  7.2.2 Data collection procedure......................................................................... 123
7.3 Analysis of the data...................................................................................... 124
  7.3.1 Narratives................................................................................................. 124
  7.3.2 Protocol used for analyzing narratives...................................................... 125
  7.3.3 Teaching context....................................................................................... 128
    7.3.3.1 Work conditions................................................................................... 129
    7.3.3.2 Teaching support................................................................................ 130
  7.3.4 Teaching performance............................................................................. 132
    7.3.4.1 Teaching skills.................................................................................... 132
    7.3.4.2 Responsibility...................................................................................... 134
    7.3.4.3 Management issues............................................................................ 135
  7.3.5 Emotions.................................................................................................. 137
    7.3.5.1 Frustration.......................................................................................... 137
    7.3.5.2 Stress.................................................................................................. 138
    7.3.5.3 Motivation........................................................................................... 139
  7.3.6 Beyond technicalities of classroom teaching........................................... 140
    7.3.6.1 Becoming a staff member................................................................. 140
    7.3.6.2 Professional development............................................................... 142
    7.3.6.3 Significant/ critical moments............................................................ 143
7.4 Discussion of findings.................................................................................... 144
7.5 Summary...................................................................................................... 148
8.  Conclusions .................................................................................................... 149
  8.1 Introduction................................................................................................. 149
  8.2 Findings........................................................................................................ 149
    8.2.1 Study One............................................................................................... 151
    8.2.2 Study Two.............................................................................................. 152
    8.2.3 Study Three......................................................................................... 153
    8.2.4 Major findings across the studies......................................................... 154
      8.2.4.1 Relevance of context...................................................................... 155
      8.2.4.2 Emotions......................................................................................... 155
      8.2.4.3 Teaching performance.................................................................... 156
      8.2.4.4 Lack of experience........................................................................ 157
  8.3 Contributions of the research.................................................................... 157
  8.4 Limitations of the research....................................................................... 160
  8.5 Possibilities for further research............................................................... 161
  8.6 Summary...................................................................................................... 164
  References....................................................................................................... 167
  Appendices ....................................................................................................... 189
List of Tables

Table 5.1  Coding stage of autobiographies.............................................................. 56
Table 5.2  Coding of salient themes of focus groups.............................................. 57
Table 6.1  First coding stage: first categories emerging from the student –teachers’ journals.......................................................... 88
Table 6.2  First coding stage: first categories emerging from the student –teachers’ journals.......................................................... 89
Table 6.3  First coding stage: first categories emerging from the student –teachers’ interviews.................................................. 90
Table 6.4  First coding stage: first categories emerging from the student –teachers’ interviews.................................................. 92
Table 7.1  First coding stage (open coding)............................................................ 125
Table 7.2  Second coding stage (axial coding).................................................... 126
Appendices

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Appendix</th>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Appendix A</td>
<td>LEMO five-year program</td>
<td>189</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Appendix B</td>
<td>Observation checklist</td>
<td>190</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Appendix C</td>
<td>Ethics approval</td>
<td>191</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Appendix D</td>
<td>Consent forms</td>
<td>193</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Appendix E</td>
<td>Guiding questions</td>
<td>194</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Appendix F</td>
<td>Autobiographies</td>
<td>195</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Appendix G</td>
<td>Protocol for focus group</td>
<td>204</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Appendix H</td>
<td>Transcription and translation of focus group</td>
<td>205</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Appendix I</td>
<td>Journal guidelines</td>
<td>206</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Appendix J</td>
<td>Practicum journals</td>
<td>225</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Appendix K</td>
<td>Journal entries</td>
<td>226</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Appendix L</td>
<td>Protocol for interview</td>
<td>245</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Appendix M</td>
<td>Interview transcripts</td>
<td>246</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Appendix N</td>
<td>Letter of invitation to participate in study three</td>
<td>260</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Appendix O</td>
<td>Narrative accounts</td>
<td>261</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Acknowledgements

To my supervisor Prof. Anne Burns, I cannot begin to express my sincerest appreciation for the countless hours spent on the development of this thesis. Anne, you have been most generous with your time and expert recourses in assisting me in the completion of this project. Thank you so much.

This thesis has been made possible through the willingness of the four participants in this study. I extend my thanks to them for allowing me into their lives through their narratives, interviews and journals.

To my friends and colleagues, Fatima Encinas, Louise Greathouse and Adriana Arrazola, your words of support and encouragement always came at the right time and were much appreciated. To my companions in this journey Verónica Sanchez and Tere Castineira for always being there “on the other side of the line” giving me intellectual and moral support; I will forever be grateful. We did it girls! To Nancy Kerenan thank you so much for your generosity helping me see clearer what I was doing. I will always owe you. I also acknowledge the technological support of Antonio Huerta who helped me through the different phases of the development of this thesis.

I would like to acknowledge the support I received from Santiago Aguilar M.A. director of the Language Faculty at the BUAP (Benemérita Universidad Autónoma de Puebla) and his staff. I wish to extend my sincere gratitude for all the financial aid and facilities that I was granted to be able to carry out this thesis.

I would also like to acknowledge the generous financial support granted to me through the BUAP and through PROMEP (Programa para el mejoramiento del profesorado) which made it possible for me to be in the doctorate program at Macquarie University.

This thesis would never have been completed without the support of my husband, best friend and life companion, Manolo, for your encouragement and unflattering belief in me that has allowed me to always achieve my goals. To my children Christopher, Jennifer, Michael, and Maricarmen, thank you for always being my personal cheerleaders and never doubting for one minute that I could do this. All my love. To my grandson Christopher, I want you to know that I love you and if I could do this, you can too. And to you dear God, thank you for always coming through for me.